I don't know if I found coding or coding found me. I started my career in Graphic Design but I soon realised that the new platforms were not going to be in ink and paper. I found in Frontend Development a field of infinite possibilities where the technical base is complemented with creativity and good practices.

Throughout my experience I have acquired all these tools that has been very useful tool when approaching any project, since I take into account the technical approach to development together with the user experience point of view.
